FAQs

Is this for new or existing staff members?

Both. This course works to both upskill longstanding employees and for new hires joining the team.

What kind of time commitment is required?

The ESFA requires 20% learning which is undertaken outside of the normal day-to-day working environment and leads towards the achievement of an apprenticeship. This could include all naturally arising learning opportunities at work, tutor support time, independent study time, participation in conferences and other activity. The dedicated ILE representative will be able to give more details.

Am I eligible for this course?

An apprentice has to work 50% or more in England. This qualification would represent 'significant new skills' (i.e. generally that the apprentice hasn't done this course before). There are other detailed requirements which will be discussed during the initial assessment and enrolment process.

What kind of assessment is involved?

A number of workplace observations will be undertaken to see you carrying out practical skills for your on-programme assessment requirements. You will also complete online tests to demonstrate your knowledge and understanding of those practical skills.

You will need to provide reflective accounts of your practice and any research you have completed as part of your independent study. Your employer can also support the assessment process by providing witness testimonies as evidence of your competency.

How will I be assessed at the end?

You will be required to undertake a six hour practical exam accompanied by oral questioning. Don't worry if you haven't completed a formal assessment in a long time, our trainers will help you get ready for this every step of the way. The outcome of these assessments will be graded as Fail, Pass, or Distinction.
